

BUSINESS COMMUNICATION MAJOR (M)

Communication is by far the most important skill professionals have in the business world. Main components of communication within the workplace involve nonverbal communication, audience analysis, data interpretation, and public speaking.

The Business Communication program provides an opportunity to study topics such as public relations, group dynamics, conflict management and cross-cultural communication. Students gain practical experience through mock-interviews, crisis response activities, networking events, journalism, social media campaigns, and servant leadership opportunities. Graduates of the program are well equipped for a variety of careers in management, corporate communication, negotiation and technical writing.

Program Learning Outcomes

By fulfilling all of the course requirements for the Bachelor's of Science in Business Communication, students will be able to:

1. Write and deliver effective speeches for a variety of audiences
2. Apply different managerial perspectives (e.g., classical, human relations, and human resources) to motivate and manage subordinates
3. Write clear letters, proposals, and persuasive messages that accomplish the intended purposes in the workplace
4. Write a research paper that uses and cites a variety of up-to-date and credible sources
5. Use empathetic listening to understand and support those experiencing issues, problems or emotions
6. Negotiate to obtain desired outcomes using either collaborative or competitive approaches, when appropriate
7. Possess readiness to use their God-given gifts effectively in their vocation to serve others.
